Separate 1w account and promotion conditions

This volume continues the saved 1w policy record. Numbered provisions and their distinctions are attributed to that operator; they do not govern the editorial publication or replace the separate India 1Win episode. Visiting any site section or opening an account is described as acceptance of the user agreement, general terms, privacy, responsible-gaming documents, advertising conditions, betting rules and available bonus/special-offer rules. The source explicitly warns that deposited money can be lost.

Bonus use, cancellation and slot cashback

The site invites subscriptions for promotion, tournament and special-offer news. Collusion-derived winnings, bonuses and funds must be returned on first demand under 18.2.2. Bonus wagering requirements appear in Promotions & Bonuses (35.4). Unless expressly allowed, the maximum is one active Casino bonus and one active Sports bonus at once (35.6). Unsettled real-balance sports/casino bets block bonus wagering until fully settled (35.8). Each offer can cap winnings transferable to real balance at its own Maximum Win (35.9).

Cancellation/revocation may follow an unclaimed/unactivated bonus expiring, missed wagering deadline, or replacement by a new bonus where the offer provides it (35.10–35.10.3). Winnings from bonus-funded bets remain attached to that bonus and its wagering conditions. On forfeiture/cancellation, the particular rules determine their treatment, possibly real-balance credit where permitted; such credited winnings do not count toward another bonus’s wagering (35.11).

The relationship-communication data purpose N includes service changes, new features, bonuses/offers, security updates, usage help, marketing, requested information and required notices. Its stated bases are contract, legitimate interests and consent.

Weekly cashback returns part of slot losses, available from Bronze 1. The rate rises with VIP Loyalty Program level and depends on weekly losing slot stakes. Credit is on Saturday, 07:00–11:00 UTC. Claim via Bonuses → cashback card → Claim within seven days or it expires. This cashback is immediately withdrawable with no wagering. A separate banner promises more benefits at higher levels through casino, sport and Markets activity; it supplies no extra percentage here.

Account definition, acceptance and corrected settlement

Agreement encompasses the User Agreement, General Terms and all applicable policies/guidelines/documents, including privacy and responsible gaming (1.1). A gaming account records deposits for stakes and credits winnings (1.8). Customers must check credited winnings and complain within ten days with account number, date, time, event, amount, selected outcome, odds and reasons (2.2). Prior knowledge of an outcome can trigger account closure and cancellation of all bets, without the company supplying proof/conclusions (2.12).

A stake cannot exceed the current balance; registration debits the stake and settlement credits winnings (3.5). Wrong settlements are recalculated, but intervening bets remain valid. A resulting negative balance prevents further betting until replenishment (3.8). Maximum bets vary by sport, event and type and may be changed; event and individual limits may be imposed or removed without notice/explanation (3.14). Server registration plus online confirmation establishes acceptance, after which no amendment is allowed; specified acceptance-rule exceptions may settle live bets at 1 (6.2). Sports Cash-out immediately settles and credits the account, ending dependence on the event's final outcome (9.7).

Geolocation, registration and one-account rules

VPNs, proxies and other location-masking/altering tools are prohibited, with possible damages, suspension/termination and forfeited winnings (12.4). Cheating examples include multiple accounts, automated betting, arbitrage, accounts not used for betting and loyalty abuse; the company reserves cancellation and closure (12.8).

Main services require an account, opened through one-click registration or email/password, with name, phone and birth date added (13.1). Email must be genuine, including replacement of the one-click address (13.2). Requested identity documents may be required before suspension/blocking is lifted (13.3). Registration details must be complete, truthful and promptly updated; failure can cause limits, suspension, blocking or annulled payments (13.4). Registration questions go to support (13.5).

Only one account is allowed. Extra accounts are "backup" accounts: the operator can close them, invalidate their operations, retain deposits/bets from main and backup accounts and demand return of associated winnings, bonuses and funds at once (13.6–13.6.3). These are the saved operator's asserted remedies, not a determination of their legal enforceability.

Identity, account ownership and continuing review

Registered name and date of birth must match legal identity, and account name must match deposit/withdrawal card or payment-account names (14.1–14.2). At any time, identity/address/payment verification may request a valid passport/ID, used payment cards and a recent card/bank statement for the method, no more than three months old (14.3, 14.3.1, 14.3.3). Failure to supply or verify within a period set by the operator may result in balance withholding, voided transactions and a frozen account (14.4–14.4.2).

Security review can check identity, age, registration/payment details, prohibited practices, compliance and financial transactions at any time (14.5). Deposited money must rightfully belong to the customer (14.7). Additional information is required for security/AML; identity evidence, checking methods and results are retained, with initial/ongoing checks according to risk (14.8). Suspicious and special-condition transactions may be monitored (14.10). The source presents this as a statutory, gaming-regulatory and internal AML/CTF procedure (14.12). Suspected laundering/terrorism finance can lead to authority reports, blocked funds and other AML measures (14.13).

Credentials and safeguarding access

Username/password must remain secret; Restore Password recovers access data (15.1). The customer bears responsibility for credential safety, account actions/transactions and third-party-caused losses (15.2). Suspected unauthorised access must be reported immediately with proof if requested; the company disclaims damage from misuse, carelessness or unauthorised entry (15.3).

The operator says it takes reasonable underage-access precautions. Adults sharing a computer with minors must protect usernames, passwords and bank details. Its named blocking-software examples are www.netnanny.com, www.cybersitter.com and www.gamblock.com (15.4). These are source-listed examples, not new product recommendations.

Deposits, withdrawal and exchange statements

Betting requires a funded account (16.1), and deposits must not come from illegal/prohibited sources (16.2.1). Costs of bank transfers returning funds to the lawful owner fall on the recipient (16.4). Customers agree not to reverse/cancel account transactions and to reimburse unallocated amounts plus collection expenses (16.6). Suspected fraudulent funding permits blocking, payment cancellation and recovery of winnings, authority reports and collection agencies; unauthorised card use is disclaimed whether theft was reported or not (16.7). Positive balance can offset debts, including repeated bets, collusion/fraud and errors (16.8).

The gaming account is not a bank account, has no deposit-insurance or similar protection and earns no interest (16.9). Withdrawal requires received payments to have been checked and not cancelled (16.10–16.10.1). Up to USD 50 is described as 1–60 minutes, except bank/system faults; from USD 50 as within five days (16.11.4–16.11.5). The overlapping boundary is retained rather than assigned a newly invented rule.

The company says it offers no money exchange and can close exchange-use accounts, invalidate main/duplicate-account transactions and retain deposits (16.12, 16.12.2 and the source-numbered 13.12.3). Clause 16.16 repeats that it is not a financial institution, pays no interest and offers no conversion, including fiat–crypto. Separately, 16.17 describes conversions if they occur using recognised market rates, including site-displayed rates, with volatility and rate-variation losses disclaimed. Both statements are retained with their separate clauses.

The customer assumes legal-compliance responsibility in the place of use; the payment provider is disclaimed for illegal/unauthorised breaches. The source treats already-purchased services/goods as non-refundable and payments as non-cancellable, while future service use can be declined in the personal account (17.2).

Fraud, account closure and service interruption

The company reserves account closure irrespective of when a rule breach is discovered (18.2). Stolen, cloned or otherwise unlawfully obtained card data is prohibited (18.3.3). Suspected fraud permits blocking without notice and refusal of balance compensation, with law-enforcement reports and required customer cooperation (18.7). Nominee/third-party play is prohibited; the security clause asserts immediate blocking where the person being verified lacks sufficient sports-betting knowledge (18.9).

Hacking, unauthorised confidential-data access and DDoS attacks may lead to total access bans, blocking and authority reports (19.4). Account sale/transfer is barred (19.6). The closure provisions include links to an earlier deleted account (source numbering 17.1.2) or currently blocked account, whatever the relationship (20.1.3). Except stated cases, a requested balance refund follows collection of amounts owed. The operator may also close or terminate by notice to the contact address; outside clauses 18 and 25, it says it must return the balance. If contact is impossible, the text says money may be transferred to the company or a supervisory body (20.2).

Bets made with erroneous credits and their winnings can be voided; amounts already paid must be returned on demand as money held in trust (23.2). Maintenance, updates, technical issues or other uncontrollable causes can suspend, limit or end access; uninterrupted availability and loss-free gameplay/transactions are not guaranteed (24.5). Breach-derived payments, winnings or bonuses can be removed (25.2.4), and login credentials annulled for non-compliance (25.3). Data processing is said to follow the Privacy Policy (27.1).

Further bonus-balance conditions

Cash-bonus withdrawal requires completed wagering. A registration/no-deposit award cannot be withdrawn before a first deposit (35.2). Unclaimed bonuses may be removed, added or changed (35.3). Bonus abuse can forfeit winnings and close accounts; examples are multiple-account claims, minimal-risk bets, above-limit bonus stakes, software/system exploitation and deliberately delayed rounds to meet wagering (35.5).

Real account funds must be exhausted before bonus funds can be wagered unless the offer says otherwise (35.7). Withdrawal while an active or unactivated available bonus exists may cancel it where offer rules disallow that withdrawal (35.10.4). These balance rules remain separate from the earlier one-Casino/one-Sports active-bonus rule.

Additional privacy scope, retention and rights

The policy applies to all owned/operated websites and online/mobile services/products. Personal Data means identifiable information such as name, email, address, phone, payment-account details, payment information, support queries, betting history and chat comments; genuinely aggregated/anonymised data is outside that definition. Collection depends on the requested service. Contact details/documents may be requested at registration, verification, AML/antifraud checks or support; cookies, tracking tools, Google Analytics, transactions and account activity also supply data.

Purpose B checks age, location, identity and self-exclusion status to determine eligibility and operate accounts, on contract/legitimate-interest bases. The source describes correction/deletion facilities and retention while the account remains open, then five years after closure or last contact where applicable, for regulation, legal duties and defence of claims. Further reasons include tax, AML and financial rules, accounting and dispute resolution, including deposits/payouts.

Erasure ground listed	Limitation retained
Processing no longer necessary	Retention may still be required for overriding legitimate interests, legal duties or establishing/exercising/defending claims.
Consent withdrawn where consent was the basis	Other lawful bases can still apply.
Objection with no overriding legitimate ground	The grounds are assessed under the policy.
Unlawful processing	The source identifies this as an erasure ground.
Erasure required by law	The legal obligation governs.

Rights are not all absolute. Requests can use account settings or support email; identity evidence may be required. Complaints about processing go to support for review/investigation and a response within a reasonable period.

The Google Analytics statement says it collects visit frequency, pages and previous-site information using the IP assigned on the visit date rather than name; the operator says it does not combine this with Personal Data. A persistent cookie identifies returning users and is described as usable only by Google, governed by Google Analytics terms and Google privacy policy. Disabling cookies prevents return recognition. Registration cookies store registration data to recognise customers, deliver requested service and improve understanding of preferences.

Self-exclusion, refunds and additional AML evidence

During self-exclusion, only funds already held before the request can be withdrawn; the policy encourages exclusion from other gambling sites too. A refund request is considered only within 24 hours of the alleged transaction, or within 30 days where someone else or a minor allegedly accessed the account.

On registration, customers promise AML/CTF compliance and declare no knowledge/suspicion of illegal, laundered or otherwise prohibited origins of past, present or future funding. The operator retains identity documents and all transactions, monitors suspicious/special transactions, performs initial/ongoing risk-based checks and records methods/results. It screens against terrorist-suspect lists from authorised government and independent agencies.

Additional minimum-information/evidence fragments name source of funds, valid passport/ID or used payment cards, and a payment-method card/bank statement no older than six months. This six-month AML statement differs from the three-month identity clause above and is not silently substituted for it. The source attributes the process to gaming/AML law and internal AML/CTF policy.

Later sports and VIP fragments in the same section

Cup-match overtime to resolve a two-leg aggregate counts only for outright markets such as To Qualify, To Gain Promotion and Winner incl. OT. Another fragment includes extra time/shootouts only for To Qualify, To Lift the Trophy and similar markets. If both drivers fail to finish, completed laps matter; qualifying results apply only to qualification-specific markets.

Map Winner Early Payout for maps 1, 2 or 3 requires a seven-round lead in the selected map’s regulation time, excluding overtime. Later score changes do not reverse settlement; without the lead, final result governs. The source then asks how a personal VIP manager differs from support, but supplies no answer in this slice; the question does not establish a new service promise.
