1w: final detailed terms in this source block

This continuation preserves the remaining saved 1w responsible-play, money, legal-scope, promotion and complaint provisions. It reports the operator’s statements and does not independently validate their enforceability, security, jurisdictional permission or current availability. Market-specific sports clauses stay separate from original Tower Rush.

Responsible play and limits

Odds, handicaps, outcome options and maximum bets may change for future wagers; existing accepted wagers keep their terms. Customers must check the current line before a new bet (2.4). The operator attributes gambling choice and financial-loss risk to the customer. Its policy claims commitments to preventing excessive play and underage access, describes addiction as affecting a small part of adults and acknowledges difficulty distinguishing enthusiasm from harm. These prevalence/diagnostic assertions are attributed claims, not medical findings.

Its ten-question screen calls five positive answers a high likelihood of addiction. Self-exclusion is described as a break and access to support, requested through customer service with immediate effect; return is allowed only after expiry. Minimum duration is one year, without early cancellation. Permanent closure must be honoured without reopening.

Privacy purpose J assesses gambling activity for responsible-gaming purposes, using legal obligation, legitimate interests and contract. Self-exclusion data may be retained longer for those duties. The source separately disclaims match-duration discrepancies: Upcoming/Live information is referential and official competition regulations govern.

Disputes, faulty bets and event results

A mandatory pre-court complaint procedure applies to disputes over the betting agreement, payment, outcomes, odds, essential conditions and validity/effectiveness (2.6). Staff errors, obvious event-list typos, line/bet odds mismatch, rule-breaking acceptance or other evidence of incorrect bets permit voiding at 1 (2.8). Suspected unsporting competition may freeze event bets pending an international organisation's conclusion; confirmation permits voiding at 1 without disclosure of proof/conclusions (2.9). Deliberate false statements to staff about acceptance, winnings or results can cancel a bet, including the stated application to under-18s and parents (3.10).

Cancelled tennis matches refund except overall-competition-performance wagers. An interrupted match not completed that day and postponed stays valid until tournament end, match completion or participant withdrawal (8.11). Conflicting sources on timing, result or names can delay winnings while authenticity is checked. If official-site results differ from television, the company may use the broadcast or other reliable sources (8.20). Sports Cash-out releases a bet's value before final calculation; event progress may make that amount above or below the original stake (9.1).

Payments, fees and balance turnover

Customers agree not to deny or reverse completed payments in ways causing repayment to a third party or avoiding liability (16.2.2). Cash payments are not accepted. Electronic/financial processors may be used for deposits and payouts, with their conditions accepted where compatible with the agreement (16.5). Unplayed funds may attract a withdrawal charge equal to operator expenses (16.11.3, 16.12.1).
Bank/payment-system delays may add up to three working days, and alternative withdrawal routes require express agreement (16.11.6–16.11.7).

Withdrawal activation requires wagering at least 100% of each deposit on bets or platform games (16.13). Winnings above USD 50,000 or equivalent may lead to an individually calculated daily withdrawal cap (16.14). The acknowledgement also permits daily/weekly/monthly maximum prizes and withdrawal limits; no unspecified numerical cap is invented.

The customer owes ordered goods/services, extras, taxes and duties on time. Pressing Payment is described as irrevocable completion and a waiver of recall; an order also declares legal compliance and authorised card use (17.1). The payment provider processes the site-defined amount, without responsibility for additional costs, pricing, product quality/quantity, card-data processing refusal or missing issuing-bank authorisation (17.3). A customer who rejects those terms should decline the payment in time and contact site support (17.4).

Concerted-account transactions may be invalidated and deposits/bets retained (18.2.1). Suspected intentional bonus misuse allows suspension, cancellation or recovery of bonus-related payments/winnings (18.4). General cash-bonus wagering applies only to the bonus, or the percentage award where it is deposit-based; the promotion sets the multiplier (35.1). Deposited funds, including bonus, cannot be refunded once used in gambling under the saved refund clause.

Points conversion and full rakeback example

After collecting the currency-specific minimum 1w Points, a customer with at least one deposit can convert them into account money. The resulting credit must be wagered 1× before withdrawal. The minimum and rate are currency-specific and referenced to a table not reproduced in this particular source slice; no rate is inferred.

Rakeback returns a percentage of casino stakes regardless of win/loss, from Bronze 2 upward, with a higher rate at higher levels. Eligible categories named here are slots, live casino and 1w games. Calculation uses stake, game house edge (100% minus RTP) and rakeback percentage, normally immediately but up to five minutes depending on provider. The example is 100 USDT × 5% edge × 7% enhanced crypto rakeback = 0.35 USDT.

Claim through Bonuses → rakeback card → Claim, with no limit on claim count. Stakes from one wallet return to it; multiple-wallet stakes distribute the rebate among those wallets. Withdrawal requires 1× wagering of the rakeback. This differs from the weekly slot cashback's zero wagering in volume 07.

Additional data and sports fragments

Public sources and trusted third parties such as payment providers may supplement and validate data and personalise/improve service. Purpose D provides help with technical, payment or other service issues on the contract basis. Consent can be withdrawn, but another lawful basis may permit continued processing.

The following independent sports fragments remain at their supplied scope: postponement/delay retains bets until match/tournament completion or official participant withdrawal; a tournament non-starter refunds, while first official finisher wins; a paired-race rule refunds if both withdraw or one does not start, and awards the bet to the sole finisher if the other withdraws. These differ from other race clauses using distance and cannot be substituted for them.

A golfer becomes a participant at tee-off; withdrawal/refusal thereafter loses bets on that golfer. A match participant withdrawing/disqualified before start refunds. Another timing clause uses the last point as official completion time after withdrawal, disqualification or early termination. An official first-place player/pair wins, with pre-tournament withdrawal refunded. A team withdrawing/disqualified in the specified map-based fragment refunds match and map bets. Several intervening source lines introduce first-set/withdrawal settlement without their outcomes; no missing rule is fabricated.

Age, territories and legal disclaimers

Server registration and online confirmation make a bet accepted, with amendment/cancellation only as the agreement permits (3.4). Under-18s, or anyone below a jurisdiction's higher permitted age, may not use the site. The operator can request age proof and deny/suspend service without it (12.1).

The operator says online gambling may be prohibited locally, gives no legal advice or guarantee of compliance and makes the customer responsible for lawful use (12.2–12.3 and the repeated saved notices). Residents or people located in excluded territories may not register, open accounts or deposit. The list may change without prior notice. These disclaimers do not amount to permission in any unlisted jurisdiction.

Third-party funding, including friends, relatives or partners, is barred. Funding must use an account/card/system in the customer's name; breach may confiscate winnings (16.3). Illegal/fraudulent use may trigger suspension/blocking and removal of funds, with claims against the company disclaimed (18.8). Illegal-purpose accounts are another closure ground (20.1.6). The company, distributors, branches, licensees, subsidiaries, staff and managers disclaim losses from interception/misuse of internet-transmitted information (23.4).

Processing may be needed for AML, responsible-gaming and licence duties. Purpose C covers legal responsibilities, licence conditions and prevention of laundering/match-fixing, on legal-obligation grounds. Disclosure may go to regulators, law enforcement, government, courts, fraud-prevention/licensing bodies, esports self-governance organisations or other parties where needed for law or legal rights; notice is promised where possible and appropriate.

Session cookies last only for the visit, support navigation and relevant information for registered users, and expire on browser closure. Refund/reversal may be withheld until identity is established. The source permits demands for notarised or certified identity under local law and says failure within 30 days leads to no refund/reversal, closure and forfeiture, described as final and unappealable. This is the operator's clause, not this publication's legal finding.

Support, complaints and further disclosures

Suspected collusion/fraud by another customer must be reported immediately through website support (18.6). The company may alter/add services to maintain/update the site (21.1). Operational complaints should reach support promptly (29.1), and server dispute records may be evidence (29.2).

Written disputes go through chat or support contacts with specific facts and arguments. The stated review and reply period is four weeks from receipt, extendable to eight weeks for additional checks. Offensive/prohibited language and false information are barred (30.1). Force-majeure delay/non-performance is disclaimed for natural events, war, civil unrest, industrial disputes, utility interruptions, DDoS and other internet attacks affecting the site (31.1).

Additional disclosure recipients include service providers/partners delivering functionality or marketing/promoting the site. Direct support, feedback and bug-report communication is a listed collection context. Customers may object to direct marketing and related-only profiling at any time through unsubscribe instructions or a support request.
